My RV Travel Journal Roundabout Publications 2019-12-11 My RV Travel Journal is a great way to record your daily RV journey! The journal is divided into four sections for easily recording trip details. The Journey allows you to summarize each day's journey by making notes of the date and time of departure and arrival. There is space for recording your odometer's beginning and ending mileage and also the total miles and hours traveled for the day. You can also list the routes you plan to follow for the day. Along the Way is the section where you'll write about the attractions and points of interest seen on this day. You can mention cities and towns traveled through, stops made for eats and treats, and side trips for scenic views or unique shopping experiences. Anything experienced along the way that you want to remember is recorded here. The Day's End section is used for recording information about where you land for the night. Staying in a campground? Write the name of the campground, site number, and price paid. Checkboxes simplify making note of popular amenities like full hookups, 50-amp service, showers, laundry facilities, RV dump station and more. Not staying in a campground? Make note of whether you parked overnight at Cracker Barrel, Walmart, or some other RV-friendly establishment. Miscellaneous Notes is the place for mentioning weather conditions encountered on this day. Make note of any attractions you'd like to see or places to visit the next time you are in the area. Any miscellaneous bits of information you want to remember would go in this section. My RV Travel Journal is perfect for anyone traveling with a recreational vehicle but it can also be used by van dwellers and tent campers, too.
